So, the same issue results. Changing the terminology does not change the fact that a demon cannot inhabit or take full control of a Christian. Demonic influence and oppression are realities for Christians, no doubt, but it is simply not biblical to say that a Christian can be possessed by a demon or demonized.

Can a Christian be demon possessed? Can a Christian be

However, we can say with confidence that Christ has already won the victory and no Christian can be "demon-possessed" (Colossians 2:15). As God's Word triumphantly proclaims, "Greater is He that is in you, than he that is in the world" (1 John 4:4b).

Can a Christian be demon-possessed? And do Christians have the authority to say someone is demon-possessed? The Bible says to discern the spirits, but what if you're wrong and say something is from the devil, but it is actually from God? There are three questions here, each one requiring a careful answer.

Can a Christian Be Demon-Possessed? - Redeeming God

Had the translators of the Bible never used the word "possessed" as a translation of diamonizomai, but instead used demonized, or even "oppressed by a demon," this argument that a Christian cannot be "possessed" by a demon may have never existed in the first place.

Can a Christian be Possessed by a Demon? | Truth Or Tradition?

I tend to believe that Christians can be "afflicted" by the demonic but not "possessed". I think that is the way Wimber etc looked at it. Unfortunately the arguments you present dont really convince "the daughter of Abraham" primarily reflects her status as a devout Jew.
