The relationship between Purun Bhagat and his animal friends was the most fascinating part of the story. Animals seem to play a large part in Kipling's writing. While they may be a little more anthropomorphic than Jack London's animals, Kipling still seems to have the same type of respect and awe for the natural world.

the miracle of purun bhagat
The night we felt the earth would move
We stole and plucked him by the hand,
Because we loved him with the love
That knows but cannot understand.
And when the roaring hillside broke,
And all our world fell down in rain,
We saved him, we the Little Folk;
But lo! he does not come again!
